And Also 221 Guns to Reinforce the Army
Now at the Front.

ANOTHER CRUISER ON WAY HERE

Russian Auxiliary, "The Korea," Expected at San Francisco Soon--Seeks Coal and Supplies.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
Tokio, Sept. 12.—Marshal Oyama confirms the report that a considerable force of Russians remains south of the Hun river and says that the Russians are fortifying the heights on both sides of the Liao river at the Pass.

Sends Reinforcements
[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
London, Sept. 11.—The Rome correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph wires in a dispatch received there from Tokyo that the government, in reply to a request, Field Marshal Oyama has promised to send reinforcements numbering one hundred thousand men and 221 guns by the first of October.

Another Cruiser
[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
London, Sept. 11.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg by way of Paris states that the second Russian auxiliary cruiser, the "Korea," may be expected to reach San Francisco shortly. The general staff at St. Petersburg feels confident that the United States government will allow both the "Lena" and the "Korea" to obtain sufficient coal and supplies to take them to Vladivostok.

Release the Calchas
Vladivostok, Sept. 11.—The Russian prize crew has decided to release the British steamer Calchas, and also the neutral parts of the cargo. A portion of the cargo consigned to Japan, consisting of flour, cotton and timber, has been confiscated. Inspect the "Lena."

San Francisco, Sept. 11.—Naval engineers, under the direction of Admiral Goodrich, boarded the "Lena" this morning to make a more thorough inspection. A report will be made to Washington immediately and final orders as to the disposition of the vessel are expected from authorities there before tonight. The British collier which went ashore in a fog five miles south of the Cliff House last night and which was feared would be a total loss, was towed off this morning uninjured.

Japs Encamped
St. Petersburg, Sept. 11.—A report from Kourapatkin dated yesterday evening states that three thousand Japanese are camped at Ben Tai Putze and that the bulk of the Japanese forces are south of the Yen Tai branch railroad. The Japanese are not advancing.

Kourapatkin's Successor
St. Petersburg, Sept. 11.—It is rumored that General Nicholas Nikolaevitch, inspector of the cavalry, may supersede Kourapatkin.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 11.—The continued delay in the receipt here of anything like a detailed official account either of the battle of Liao-Yang or of the present situation at the front is proving more irritating to the public of St. Petersburg than any previous phase of the war and has given rise to numerous alarmist stories of the alleged precarious situation of Gen. Kourapatkin's army. None of these stories, however, is traceable to any authentic source. The fact seems to be that military operations in the neighborhood of Mukden are almost suspended on account of the effect of the rains upon the roads.

There is no current news to record, while Gen. Kourapatkin has transmitted any full account of the recent great battle it has not been allowed to circulate. The persistent silence is doing more than anything else to discredit the Russian commander-in-chief in the eyes of the public, with whom he has heretofore been an almost deified hero.

Chinese Cause Uneasiness
Reports that the Chinese are making preparations to occupy conquered territory are creating some uneasiness, for China has been all along an uncertain quantity from which any development or complication might be expected. No one knows precisely what pressure, racial or political, Japan may be able to bring to bear upon the great silent empire.

The logical belief always has been that China would endeavor to the utmost to refrain from taking side in the present conflict in order that she might be in a position to make the best terms possible with the ultimate victor but it is realized that a continued Japanese advance into the

LEGAL BATTLE IS ON AT MADISON

Supreme Court Listens to Arguments of the Cook and La Follette Men.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 11.—The great legal battle between the anti-administration and the administration republicans, over the question of the regularity of the republican conventions began in the supreme court today. Arguments will last all day and perhaps continue tomorrow morning. A decision of the court is not expected before September 27.

Expect Fight at Mukden.

The emperor Tuesday night received a long report from General Kourapatkin, outlining the military situation and the disposition of the Russian forces and describing minutely the strategic considerations. It is also understood that General Kourapatkin dealt lengthily with the political aspect of the situation. The contents of the report will not be published.

The authorities here are unanimously of the opinion that General Kourapatkin will not withdraw from Mukden without accepting battle. It is expected that he will leave 50,000 men to defend Mukden, while the remainder of his army retires to the pass. It is believed that General Kourapatkin has over 200,000 men. The general staff said that since the battle of Liao-Yang Kourapatkin has been re-enforced by two army corps. It is supposed that the reinforcements of artillery amount to fully 300 guns.

Lena in Need of Repairs.
Washington, Sept. 11.—It has been decided by the President that the state and navy departments, acting jointly, shall treat the case of the Russian auxiliary cruiser Lena at San Francisco. A telegram has been received from Admiral Goodrich at San Francisco, showing that on his own initiative he had caused one of his expert officers to make a preliminary examination of the Lena and that temporary repairs would occupy six weeks' time and new boilers involve eight months' delay. The President approved the admiral's action and decided that he should continue to handle the case in San Francisco under instructions from the state and navy departments. This involves further expert examination of the ship.

Experts to Investigate.
The Russian government did not object; at least the Russian consul at San Francisco gave that understanding and within a day or two, with the assistance of expert mechanics from the Union Iron Works, Admiral Goodrich will be able to report more closely on the repairs.

Acting Secretary Adair for the State department and Captain Pillsbury for the navy department had two conferences during the day and the result was the preparation of instructions to Admiral Goodrich, which it is understood, were wired to the President first for his approval. There is good ground to believe that these instructions contemplate the allowance of sufficient time to the Lena to make temporary repairs.

FROST PROMISED BY WEATHER MAN
The weather man has done it. He predicts northwest winds for tonight and a frost. It's only September but Medicine Hat is heard of—a kind of a cold shoulder to the crops and no warm propositions in sight, because the carnival goes to Beloit.

HIDALGO HEIRLOOMS ARE TAKEN BY THIEVES

Priceless Relics of Old California Grandee Disappear From Home of a Descendant.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 11.—Priceless heirloom relics of the old hidalgos of California have disappeared from the home of Mrs. H. Van Der-seeck of No. 504 West Twenty-first street. Mrs. Van Derseeck is a descendant of General Jose Sepulveda, who in the old days was the grandee of the great San Joaquin rancho. The heirlooms came from this family.

Among the other things stolen are two gorgeous fans of carved ivory and duchess lace. They were imported from France for the Sepulveda ladies in the days before the "Gringo" came. Several shawls of rare value, old Spanish lace, and heavily embroidered cloth are also missing.

Some of the articles had been in the family for a century and a half and were brought from Spain. Jewels, rings, gold necklaces of a design never successfully copied by modern goldsmiths, gorgeous old arms, and a complete bridle made of heavy links of solid silver are also reported stolen.

HOAR IS RESIGNED TO DEATH

Senator's Strength Falling Fast and End Is Not Far Away.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 11.—The reports from Senator George F. Hoar are very discouraging. The weakness that set in a few days ago continues to increase and the most hopeful of his attendants now think the end is not far away. His bodily strength is reported to be falling fast and his mind wandering at times. He has resigned himself to death.

Water Fatal to Laborer.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 11.—William Tate, 55 years old, the strongest laborer in Louisville, dropped dead while taking a drink of water.

STATE NOTES

A large barn on the farm of B. F. Hudson, near Milton, was struck by lightning and burned, together with its contents.

John Rogers, a seaman from the Ruffs P. Ranney, became violently insane at one of the Ashland hospitals, and had to be confined to the county jail.

Peter Jensen, a hucman or the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company, was fatally injured at Racine by coming in contact with a live wire.

The mystery surrounding the death of John Kateran at Kenosha will probably never be solved, but the circumstances point strongly to accidental drowning.

John Patten, who claims to be the son of a prominent railroad man in Boston, was held to the municipal court in Racine on the charge of passing a forged check.

When the will of Mrs. Sarah Wright of Oshkosh was probated it was discovered that she had left her homestead and an estate of several thousand dollars to Miss Maud Murray, recently committed to the northern hospital for insane.

Mrs. A. R. Stevens of Beloit, whose daughter is a school teacher, is also a cousin of the late John Thompson Hilton of Nevada City, Nev., whose fortune is said to await his relatives. The estate is said to be valued at $20,000,000, and Mrs. Stevens expects to receive a large amount as her share.

ASK PRESIDENT TO INTERVENE

Representatives of National Parliaments Confer at St. Louis.

SEEK AN END TO WAR IN THE EAST

The Chief Executive of the United States Is Asked To Call a New Hague Conference--Congressman Burton Spokesman.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 14.—The Inter-parliamentary union, representing fifteen different national parliaments, adopted two resolutions of far-reaching importance. In one the powers of the world are asked to intervene now in the Russian-Japanese war. In the other the nations of the world are invited to participate in a second session of The Hague conference and President Roosevelt is requested to issue the call.

The measure looking toward intervention in the far East was ardently amended. Originally the resolution provided for intervention "at the proper time." The last four words, however, were stricken out on the ground that immediate intervention is necessary. Count Goblet d'Alviella of Belgium was responsible for this amendment.

Calls for Intervention.
It was also the Belgian Senator who brought about the insertion of a phrase calling for intervention of the powers "jointly and separately;" and the hit was delicately, but informally, thrown out in this connection that the President of the United States could most properly tender mediation.

COLORED MAN MURDERS TO SHED HUMAN BLOOD

Has Slain Eleven Men in Nine Years Because of an Impulse He Cannot Resist.

Galveston, Texas, Sept. 11.—A black Jack the Ripper was arrested at Shreveport, La. The negro, Jim Lee by name, is a young man about 30 years old, but since attaining his majority he has committed not less than eleven murders, and perhaps some that he does not recall. He can give no excuse, except that he cannot refrain from shedding human blood.

Lee is arrested, charged with having during the past year committed four murders, as follows: James Johnson, a white love camp foreman in Concordia Parish, La.; Tice Lyons, a negro, at that place; Bud Dewitt, a negro of Bossier Parish, and Mary Seabrooke, colored, of Donaldsonville. Though the deaths occurred within a radius of 100 miles, Lee so cleverly concealed his identity that it was only when he murdered Johnson in daylight, and the deed was witnessed by several workmen, that the other crimes were laid at his door.

GRANT'S CIGAR CASE IN SECRETARY'S HANDS

Harmon Brown Has Weeded the General Gave Him at Headquarters Forty Years Ago.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 14.—Private Harmon Brown, one time military secretary to General Grant, has in his possession a cigar and a cigar case which General Grant carried over forty years ago. A package arrived at the general's headquarters one day, and Brown opened it in the presence of Grant. In the top of the package was a box of choice cigars, and with it was a fine cigar case.

Grant looked at both for a second, and then said, with a smile: "Fill it, Brown." His military secretary filled the case with cigars from the box and handed them to the general. He started to put the case in his pocket, and found his own already there. Extracting the old case, which still contained one cigar, Grant handed them to his secretary, and said: "Take the case and have a smoke."

Brown took them, but instead of smoking the cigar carefully preserved both. He has them now at his home in Cincinnati. As soon as the new museum in Cincinnati is completed he intends to present the cigar and the case to it for safekeeping.

WIDOW ELOPES WITH ATHLETE

Woman Weds Man Whom She Horribly Whipped Three Months Ago.

New York, Sept. 14.—Enjoining secrecy on the minister and slipping off so quietly that the news of their romance did not become known until Tuesday, Mrs. Naomi Conyn Duncombe, the richest woman of Mount Vernon, and Patrick J. Ring, manager of her estate, wrestler and strong man, were married in Long Island City on Saturday. Mount Vernon heard the news and was shocked by it, for not later than last June Mrs. Duncombe publicly horsewhipped Mr. Ring, whom she declared she had seen coming out of her new opera house there at 5 o'clock in the morning with a young woman who had formerly been active in Sunday school work. Mrs. Duncombe is worth more than $2,000,000.

FAVORITES OF LOCAL THEATRE

AND NEW PLAYS THEY PRESENT THIS SEASON.

SKINNER TO TOUR AUSTRALIA

Two of "Mrs. Wiggs" Cast Will Appear in Stellar Roles—Cecilia Loftus in Comedy—Other Notes.

Of the thespians who graced Jansville's stage last year E. H. Southern, appearing in a stupendous production of "The Proud Prince" on March 16, is the first to be heard from in the near vicinity this season. With Miss Julia Marlowe and 120 actors he arrived in Chicago Saturday and will open at the Illinois theatre next Monday with "Romeo and Juliet." The two stars will also appear in "Much Ado About Nothing" and "Hamlet." Cecilia Loftus who played with Southern in the part of the executioner's daughter in the wonderful miracle play presented here, made her bow at the Lyceum theatre, New York, for the first time last evening, in her new comedy, "The Serio-Comic Government."

Kendall's New Play
That droll character, Ezra Kendall, who delighted local playgoers in "The Vinegar Buyer," opened at the Park theatre, Boston, last week Monday in his new vehicle "Weatherbeaten Benson." The scenes of this play are laid along the Delaware coast. Francis Wilson, who with his company of stars including the late William Broderick—that inimitable "Raveness" Marguerite Sylvia, Madge Leasing, and Jessie Bartlett Davis, in "Ermine," will appear in straight comedy this season.

Skinner to Tour Australia
Ottis Skinner who appeared here in his new play "The Harvester" is soon to open with the same vehicle at the Lyric, New York, and it is probable that he will tour Australia at the close of the New York run. He has been spending the summer in that romantic region of Canada wherein the scenes incident to the story of the light hearted wanderer were laid. Miss Ethel Johnson who made a great hit as the awkward girl in "The Tenderfoot" and left the company at Jansville, more than duplicated her previous success in "The Forbidden Land" which enjoyed a long summer season in Chicago and is now on the road. She played a Swedish character part and received the best press notices of any member of the company. Richard Carle is again traveling with "The Tenderfoot" company, though he is not himself appearing in the play. He has written a new production, "The Maid and the Mummy," which has been staged in New York.

"Mrs. Wiggs" and Company
"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" which was greeted with a pitifully small audience on the evening of Nov. 17, captivated Chicago and played to overflow houses for over fifty nights. It is now meeting with a similar reception in New York. Mabel Taliaferro, the delightful "Lovey Mary" of the play will be the single English speaking actress in the company of the great Italian tragedian, Ernesto Novelli, or, as he is forthrightly called, "Ernesto." W. T. Hodges, the comedian who appeared as "Mr. Stubbs" in the cast, will star in Franklyn Fyles' new play, "Valley Crossways." Madge Carr Cooke will probably continue in the name part of "Mrs. Wiggs" throughout the season.

Others of The Players
Frederick Warde, who with Louis James presented the Shakespearean drama, "The Tempest," here two years ago, is touring the northwest with Kathryn Kilder in Stanislaus Stange's new drama of ancient Carthage, "Salammbô." At the close of this season Mr. Warde is to leave the stage for the lecture platform. Tim Murphy, the merry, "Old Innocence" of the same season, is to appear this season in "Two Men and a Girl" and "The Splice of Life." Of the other prominent actors whose names are well-known here, though they have not visited this city, a few notes may be of interest: Richard Mansfield is reported to have secured the rights to Frank Lonon's story, "The Sea Wolf." Maude Adams will appear in Israel Zangwill's "Jenny" and "Op of No Thumb." Lulu Glaser who came as far as Rockford last year with her musical comedy "Dolly Varden," opened at Rochester on Sept. 1 in "A Madcap Princess." Wilton Lackaye who also appeared in the Forest City in "The Pic" is again presenting the same production in Chicago.

Local Stage Statistics

It may be interesting to know that there were 113 performances at the Myers theatre during the season of 1903-04. The footlights blazed 125 times during the season just preceding. The troupe of the closing of the Chicago theatres, made it possible for Jansville to secure some of the finest attractions and most talented actors of the present day.

...Forty Years Ago...

To Merchants and Others.—Mr. T. D. Thompson, agent of the H. N. Burton Produce and Commission merchants, Chicago, is in the city, soliciting business for that house. The establishment is located at the corner of North Jefferson and West Indiana streets, and is having a splendid run of business. The house enjoys an excellent reputation, and those having articles to sell on commission will do well to send them to H. Burton.

The Concert of the 20th.—Perhaps no community appreciates and enjoys a really good concert more fully than ours, and when ever such an entertainment has been offered our citizens it has almost invariably been patronized. We have no doubt therefore that the grand combination concert that takes place at Lippin's hall on Tuesday evening, the 20th, will be a great success. It is under the direction of Messrs. D. D. Wilson and N. H. Bennett, who are to be assisted by other excellent musicians of this city, and several musical celebrities of Milwaukee. One of them, Prof. Abel, is the leader of the Milwaukee Musical Society, and is one of the finest singers in the northwest. The others are ladies who have won well deserved laurels in their frequent appearances before large audiences. From the known ability of those who are to take part in this concert it is safe to assure those who attend that they will have a rare treat. Tickets are now on sale at Wilson's Music store where a diagram of the hall can also be seen.

OFFENSIVE CATARRH

I suffered for a long time with a bad case of Catarrh, and took a great deal of medicine without any benefit. I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopping up, my breath had sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of your S. S. S. and wrote you. I commenced to use it, and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STORM, Cor. 7th & Felix Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 29, 1903. I had Nasal Catarrh for years for which I used S. S. S. with very gratifying results. I tried local applications for some time, and getting no permanent relief I came to the conclusion that the seat of the trouble was in the blood. Knowing S. S. S. to be a good blood medicine I began its use, and after using it for some little while it did away entirely with the offensive mucus in the nostrils, and I did not have to hack and spit, especially in the morning, to dislodge the catarrhal matter. 1627 South St. TAKED H. PRESSY.

The filthy secretions and foul mucus that are continually dropping back into the throat, find their way into the stomach and are absorbed into the blood. Catarrh then becomes constitutional, and the only way to get rid of it is through the blood. Write us if you have Catarrh, and our physicians will advise you without charge.

VERDICT OF THE PARTY

From the report of the committee on Credentials to the REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, which was unanimously adopted by that convention, June 22d, 1904.

Your committee report it to be their final judgment that the convention which elected John C. Spooner, J. V. Quarles, J. W. Babcock and Emil Esenach as delegates at large, and their alternates at large, to this convention from the state of Wisconsin WAS THE REGULAR CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN WISCONSIN, and that the delegates elected by it are the regular elected delegates at large from the state of Wisconsin to the republican convention, and, as such, are entitled to seats in this convention.

NUGGETS FROM THE LETTER.

The constitution must be observed positively as well as negatively. We do not have to guess at our own convictions and then correct the guess if it seems unpopular.

A party which, with facile ease, changes all its convictions, before election, cannot be trusted to adhere with tenacity to any principle after election.

As for the navy, it has been and is now the most potent guaranty of peace; and it is such chiefly because it is formidable and ready for use.

If on one great issue they (the Democrats) do not mean what they say, it is hardly safe to trust them on any other issue.

Free trade and reciprocity are not compatible.

They (the Democrats) have occupied three entirely different positions (on the Philippines) within fifty days. Which is the promise they really intend to keep?

Since the close of the war with Spain there has been no substantial change in the rate of actual expenditures.

Where there is no respect there can be no trust. A policy with so slender a basis of principle would not stand the strain of a single year of business adversity.

If a tariff law is passed aimed at preventing the prosperity of some of our people, it is as certain as anything can be that this aim will be achieved only by cutting down the prosperity of all our people.

There is not a policy, foreign or domestic, which we are now carrying out, which it would not be disastrous to reverse or abandon.

This government has been true to the spirit of the fourteenth amendment in the Philippines. Can our opponents deny that here at home the principles of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments have been in effect nullified.

If continued in power we shall continue our foreign policy and our handling of the navy on exactly the same lines in the future as in the past.

The President's letter of acceptance bristles with short, terse paragraphs, and hard common sense. He assures the people that the republican party, if continued in power will make no change of policy, and this assurance will be highly satisfactory. There is no occasion for a change of policy, either at home or abroad. The administration enjoys the confidence to which it is entitled, and the only class of people clamoring for a change, are found in the ranks of the democratic party.

RIGHTS OF THE INDIVIDUAL.

"So far as the rights of the individual wage worker and the individual capitalist are concerned, both as regards organized capital and labor, the position of the administration has been so clear that there is no excuse for misrepresenting it and no ground for opposing it unless misrepresented. Within the limits defined by the national constitution, the national administration has sought to secure to each man the full enjoyment of his right to live his life and dispose of his property and his labor as he deems best so long as he wrongs no one else. It has shown in effective fashion that in endeavoring to make good this guarantee it treats all men, rich and poor, whatever their creed, their color or their birthplace, as standing alike before the law.

This government is based upon the fundamental idea that each man, no matter what his occupation, his race or his religious belief, is entitled to be treated on his worth as a man and neither favored nor discriminated against because of any accident in his position.

In this strong language the President deals with capital and labor. He concedes to every man the right to be a man, and to exercise this God given right to the limit, so long as it does not interfere with the rights of others.

That he recognizes neither fear nor favor has been fully demonstrated time and again during his administration, and that he will pursue the same policy for the next four years, is not a matter of doubt.

The relation of railway corporations to the state, and the danger to industries, if the Governor's schemes are adopted, is an important topic, and worthy the careful attention of every republican who attempts to enlighten the people.

Allderman Matheson needs no defense for his attitude on the carnival question. Public sentiment is with him and scurrilous attacks will only react to his advantage. One street carnival is enough for the present generation.

The question of extravagance on the part of the administration will be a fruitful topic for discussion by republican orators. Money has been wasted by the thousands, and neither a nor defense is offered.

SHORT SIGHTED POLICY.

It is announced that the Republican National committee decided last Saturday to keep out of Wisconsin, with National speakers, until after the Supreme court decision, and then to place the speaker in the hands of the republican state central committee which is declared regular by the court.

This announcement is ill-timed and could never have been made had the man at the head of the national committee been as well versed in politics as he is in business. It matters not what the intention of the committee may be, it was both unnecessary and unwise to advertise its proposed action in advance.

The republicans of Wisconsin, the men who have kept John C. Spooner in the senate, and who are doing all in their power to save the congressional delegation in the house, have enough to contend with just now, without being told that under certain conditions the national committee will ally itself with the man who is doing all he can to defeat the party.

The republicans of the state will never compromise with this man, as is evidenced by the active campaign about to be inaugurated. The national convention had nothing to offer by way of compromise last June, and the national committee is assuming responsibility on its own authority, which, to say the least, is premature and ill advised.

There will be ample time for the national committee to outline its policy and define its position after the supreme court decision.

THE STATE CAMPAIGN.

The Republican State Central Committee has decided to open an aggressive speaking campaign, and to M. G. Jeffris is assigned the task of furnishing the keynote in Milwaukee next Friday night.

That Mr. Jeffris is thoroughly competent for the task is generally recognized and no better man could have been selected. The gallant fight made by him at the state convention in the interests of right and justice, is still fresh in the minds of the people, and he enjoys their confidence in large degree.

There are a few timid republicans who question the advisability of opening an aggressive speaking campaign in advance of the Supreme court decision. It might help them to remember that the republican press of the state, while practically a unit in denouncing La Follette, can accomplish but little without the active as well as the moral support of the party.

The Governor has been in a defiant mood ever since the Chicago convention, and for the past two weeks he has been traveling over the state, poisoning the minds of the people.

The only way to meet him effectively is on the stump.

There is no lack of material for convincing discussion. The present administration is not only extravagant, but it is so polluted by the taint of corruption that all unprejudiced minds are shocked at prevailing conditions.

It is high time that the mask of reform was removed, and this can be done effectively by any intelligent speaker who has the interests of the party, and the welfare of the state at heart. The Milwaukee Sentinel has this to say of the campaign:

"Governor La Follette has been successful in the past because the opposition to his vaunting exploitation of 'reform' has not been met by the conservative republicans with an effective, open campaign. The republican newspapers of the state have not been wanting in their zeal for principle or their condemnation of administrative corruption and machine politics, but never before—with one honorable exception—has the voice of a republican leader been raised in opposition to the machinations of the arch demagogue and political quack who has conducted a continuous campaign for his own personal advancement for more than four years. The exception noted was when Senator John M. Whitehead challenged the truth of Gov. La Follette's statements in relation to taxation reform and proved from the official records that the governor has obstructed rather than advanced, that movement.

It might be proper for campaigneers to defend Mr. Babcock and other republican candidates whom the Governor is attempting to defeat. The next house of congress may need Wisconsin to hold a republican majority, and while this is of no consequence to the Governor, it is of vital interest to the party.

The Republican National Committee had better get together and advise the chairman of the action of the National convention on the Wisconsin situation. The convention devoted as a unit in declaring La Follette's irregular. Nothing has been done to change the verdict, and the chairman should be satisfied.

The relation of railway corporations to the state, and the danger to industries, if the Governor's schemes are adopted, is an important topic, and worthy the careful attention of every republican who attempts to enlighten the people.

Allderman Matheson needs no defense for his attitude on the carnival question. Public sentiment is with him and scurrilous attacks will only react to his advantage. One street carnival is enough for the present generation.

The question of extravagance on the part of the administration will be a fruitful topic for discussion by republican orators. Money has been wasted by the thousands, and neither a nor defense is offered.

PRESS COMMENT.

La Crosse Leader-Press: The dearth of news from the war just now is probably due to the fact that the two armies marched so fast the correspondents could not keep up.

Madison Journal: Are there any figures small enough to express the cash value of the New York woman whom it cost $39,950 per annum to dress?

Sheboygan Journal: Judging from the Paris green which Sheboygan's poor bought at the city's expense last month, potato bugs must be a necessity.

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: The Taggartian explanation of how it happened in Maine is in proof and ready for distribution.

Madison Democrat: "Where can I find a professional safe blower?" asked the hospital physician. "I've got to remove a portion of a drummer's cheek who was hurt in a railway wreck."

El Paso Herald: Square men will have no cause to object to the new diamond creased trousers, but those with cylindrical legs are free to confess that they never did approve of King Edward setting American fashions.

Racine News: There is perhaps nothing wiser in human conduct than the sagacity which poor men exhibit in giving away fortunes they do not possess. It is easy to criticize millionaires.

Wausau Record: One of the features of the Eagle's carnival at Oshkosh next week will be a wedding which will take place in the den of lions. That ought to be a start that would make almost any possible subsequent matrimonial vicissitudes seem tame.

Oshkosh Northwestern: It is recalled that Mulden is the location of the tombs of Chinese ancestors, but if the Japs and the Russians get into a scrap there are a great many of these tombs that are liable to be scratched.

Chicago Record-Herald: However this is all speculation at very long range.

It the Baltic fleet reaches the Mediterranean without a breakdown it may consider itself extremely lucky, and if it gets beyond the Red Sea, the time of wonders will have come.

Sturgeon Bay Advocate: That lumberman down in Jones county, Miss., who blew up his mill with dynamite because his employees were out on a strike and would not permit other men to take their places, adopted a heroic as well as a most original method of ending the controversy. The plant having been entirely ruined the people who were dependent on it for their living will have to move elsewhere, while the lumberman will doubtless wait for a more favorable time for resuming business, if that is desirable. Meanwhile there will be no further dispute about sawmill wages there.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Yesterday, at Madison, the old republican state central committee, also accused of conspiracy and determined to wipe out the stain no matter how great the sacrifice, met in solemn council and called itself into its august presence, like the heroic Roman judge, it mattered not to the old committee that the accused was its own flesh and blood, wore its own store clothes, Knox hats, and Pingree shoes, smoked its own cigars, and rode on its own railway passes. It had a duty to perform and the faces of its members shone with the beautiful light that glorified the countenances of the sainted martyrs. The old committee did its duty. It hailed itself before the council composed of itself, heard its own case, acted as court, prosecutor, attorney, jury, sheriff, court clerk and clerk of the court, and after a full impartial hearing pronounced itself "not guilty."

DAILY THOUGHTS.

Monday—Every noble life leaves the fiber of it interwoven forever in the works of the world.

Tuesday—We can only be valued as we make ourselves valuable.

Wednesday—To turn into ridicule what is not ridiculous is, in some sort, to turn good into evil.

Thursday—In character, in manners, in style, in all things, the supreme excellence is simplicity.

Friday—Stretching his hands out to catch the stars, man forgets the flowers at his feet.

Saturday—Go, wondrous creature! . . . Instruct the planets in what orb to run, Correct old Time, and regulate the sun. Go, teach Eternal Wisdom how to rule—Then drop into thyself, and be a fool!

Sunday—The despondent mind is ingratitude to heaven.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

Not very long after marriage people begin to look very homesick to be engaged again.

No one takes a man's cursing very seriously. Then why take so seriously a woman's weeping?

It sometimes happens that you want to speak well of a man, and all you can say is that he is "willing."

Usually when the mother goes away on a visit, the daughter has her first experience in cleaning a chicken.

When a young man calls on a girl and stays late that noise overheard is not thunder; it is the old man grumbling.—Athenian (Kan.) Globe.

Many wives think it a moral duty to subject a husband's self conceit to a continuous ice spray treatment.

A political boom often goes up like a rocket—explodes, there's a little whiff of powder, and really there's no stick to it.

It is a blessing for the happy home that husbands and wives do not always know exactly what each thinks of the other.

When you want to ask favors of a man be sure to select a time when his safe department is in good working order.—Kate Thyson Marr.

SELF-CONTROL.

The greatest lesson in life is that of self-control, and to acquire it should be the aim of every individual.

Making the best of life is one of its cardinal virtues, and helps us to bear what otherwise would prove unbearable.

There is an art in making the best of everything, and very often the most distressing series of events will eventually turn to one's good.

Life is generously punctuated with serious propositions that often depress and discourage us until we wonder if, after all, life is worth living.

It is a strenuous effort and a bitter lesson—but, no matter how terrible suffering may be, it is augmented or allayed by the exercise of will.

The trifles of every-day life are harder to endure than the paralyzing blow that stuns through its suddenness, leaving one nerveless, pulseless, and unequal to reaction.

There are precious few of us who would willingly live over again the past. The echoes of memory are not harmonious, and the bitter experience has left a scar that even time has failed to heal.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

Living in the suburbs is a terrible temptation to miss the last train.

When a woman takes her first Turkish bath she has a sensation of wondering if anybody is peeping.

It's a good deal easier to kiss a girl and get forgiveness for it than to get forgiveness for daring to ask her.

A woman can defeat the coldest logic that ever was thought out with two tears and a pocket handkerchief.

It makes a woman very miserable to think how queer it would be if she had been born a man with all the nice clothes she would miss.—New York Press.

PROBES SECRETS OF RIVER BED

DREDGE PROVES SILVER ROCK A GHOSTLY TOMB

OF OLD SHOES AND TIN CANS

Last Iron Tube of New Bridge Was Placed Yesterday—Work Will Now Move Rapidly.

Yesterday the last iron tube of the new Court street bridge was put in place. Some little trouble was met with in displacing the stone crib of the old bridge which has been there twenty years. No one seems to exactly know just what was the purpose of the crib, save that it was used as a sort of dam. The tubes are allowed to rest entirely in their vertical position and then the river bottom inside the tube is removed with the clam-shell dredge and the tube sinks into its final position by its own weight.

Dredge Brings Up
In operation this character of dredge is not unlike a human hand. It is interesting to observe what is brought up at each haul. Judging from its general appearance, the rock river must be a general dump-hole. Tomato cans, glass bottles, wire, old shoes, and all the articles that go to make up a rubbish heap are the secrets of the dirty water.

Anchoring the Piers
Six hard oak piles will be driven inside of each of the steel tubes and the space between them will be filled with crushed stone concrete. These piles will be to the Court street bridge what the stone abutments are to the upper railroad bridge.

An End on Rollers
Iron bridges on account of the changes in temperature, expand and contract to such an extent that one end is always placed on rollers. The concrete constructions on either side are fastened in completion and the east one is that on which the rollers are to rest. On the south side the bridge will be fastened solid.

Betts of Lyons, New York, and Peter Hohenadel, Jr., were re-elected on the board of directors. Don Farnsworth has just purchased a large interest in a water meter factory in Baltimore and has been made president of the concern. ## STUDENT BAND NOW DEPARTING

CITY THIS YEAR SENDS THIRTY-FIVE TO COLLEGES.

MANY STATES CLAIM THEM

Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, and Mexico as well as Wisconsin attract.

Higher institutions of learning in many states are beckoning to Janesville young people, numbering no less than thirty-five. Some are already pouring over their books, near and far from home, and those who still remain here are making hurried preparations for an early departure. All will have bidden their farewells within an hour's time. It is cause for much satisfaction that twenty-seven per cent of the young men and women who go forth to penetrate further into the realms of knowledge are graduates of the Janesville high school class of 1904, and that there are but twelve per cent who are non-alumni of that institution.

Motives Are Varied

A broad and liberal education, for its own sake, is sought by some, but by far the larger number seek the college halls with definite objects in view. In all of the large universities the trend of the times is away from classical and literary courses to practical training for the student's life work. The age has accepted the dictum that swiftness towards a sought goal is to be preferred and in this spirit Janesville shares. Her students are going away to study music, oratory, pedagogy, and engineering, in order to fit themselves for the life callings which they have chosen. Nine of the ten who are to enter the state university this fall will pursue mechanical, electrical, or mining engineering courses.

At "The Varsity"

The great seat of learning at Madison is to have her share of our ambitious young people. Those who will begin or resume their work there are: Michael Hayes, Joe Hayes, Victor Anderson, John Sherman, Harold Myers, Roger Watkins, Frank Fisher, Howard Greene, Edward Palmer, Will Ryan, Ross Sutherland, Ray Showalter, Merrill Cressley, Eretta Kimball, Harriet Hutson, Inasard Keller, Elisabeth McKay, Thomas McClernan, and Isabel Menzies.

Other Institutions

The Misses Luella Gaudier and Winifred Fifield will attend the Milwaukee normal school and Miss Mary Buckmaster has already commenced a course at the Whitewater normal. Miss Vera Wilcox leaves Monday for Northampton, Mass., where she will enter Smith college, and Miss Elizabeth Wilcox has already resumed her work at Bradford academy, Bradford, Mass. Miss Bethana Miller will return to Oberlin, Ohio, and the Misses Margarette Samuels and Cora Sovell will enter the conservatory of music there. Beloit, with its literary and classical courses, attracts Fred Scarfield, Edwin Saunders, and Steven Pitcher. "Stowe Loverly" will be a sophomore at Yale and Allan Lovejoy, a senior at the same institution. Fred Welch will be a freshman at Chicago university and Franklin Hitchcock has registered at a school of technology in Michigan. H. Dean Bemis expects to return to the School of Mines at Searo, Mexico. Malcolm Jeffris and C. Russell Zehner will be students at Wayland academy at Beaver Dam.

Miss Blanche Benson left today for Appleton where she will enter Lawrence university.

WHAT NOT TO DO.

Don't surround yourself with boys if you care to marry a man.

Don't carry your heart on your sleeve; the wrong man may be tempted to pluck it off.

When bathing don't forget to guard against wrinkles in your stockings. Avoid them also in your face.

Don't think that a pink sunbonnet is the acme of prettiness alone. A happy face is a successful rival.

Don't imagine that your reign as summer girl will be as long as Queen Victoria's. Make hay while the sun shines.

Don't flirt outrageously because it is your privilege. Perhaps a woman's ideal husband is traveling in the disguise of a summer man. You may win this plum of excellence if you are wise.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Day's Length.

By a simple rule, the length of the day and night, any time of the year, may be ascertained by doubling the time of the sun's rising, which will give the length of the night; and double the time of setting will give the length of the day.

DIGGING MACHINE AT WORK ON BLUFF ST.

Sewer Pipe Laid One Block on South Main Street—Cave-In De-lays Work.

Contractor Benson, who has charge of putting in the city sewer system, has the digging of the trenches well under way. The second block on Park place is now being dug by hand and the pipe is being put down as fast as possible. The work on the Main street ditch is being done by hand and the sewer pipes have been laid as far as the Court street corner, and are now being covered over. The ditch-digging machine, has started work on South Bluff street, near the corner of East Milwaukee, and will go one block on South Bluff street as far as Court street and down Court street to connect with the main sewer on South Main street. In several places along the street-car tracks on South Main street the walls of the ditch have caved in on either side, delaying the work considerably.

LEWIS KNITTING CO.'S "EXHIBIT IS PRAISED"

In the last issue of "The Haberdasher," a pretentious magazine published in New York, appears a handsome cut of the Lewis Knitting Co.'s booth in the Manufacturers' building of the St. Louis exposition, accompanied by remarks in high praise of the character of the exhibit. It calls especial attention to the balbriggan goods and the fine grades of silk and linen mesh, worsted, and mixtures of these. The keepsake consisting in a swatch of the material used in silk underwear that retails at $10 a suit, is also noticed. The write-up came as a surprise to the local manufacturers as it was unsolicited.

ENGINE NEARLY KILLS SIX MEN

Section Hands Pushed Hand Car Directly Towards Approaching Locomotive—Warned in Time.

Six Italian laborers on the North-Western road barely escaped, with their lives this morning. The tracks northwest of the depot are being re-ballasted and a gang of foremen, under the direction of an American boss are doing the work. The men are supposed to be on the lookout for trains but are very reckless. This morning as a south-bound freight was pulling out six of the men started on the same track toward the approaching locomotive. Not looking ahead they were within twenty feet of death when the boss happened to look up and shouted the warning. The hand-car was just lifted off the track as the engine rolled by.

A SPINSTER SAYS THAT—

Some men never look sober unless they are full.

Man was made to mourn, but a widower usually outlives it.

Much of the experience a man gets comes too late to benefit him.

Few men can resist the temptation to swallow undeserved praise.

Lying will never become a lost art until all the men have been buried.

Some men kick because their daily bread doesn't come already buttered.

But few men have been injured by the accidental discharge of their duty.

Women admire a handsome man when he has good sense—but there's the trouble.

Some men get so tired doing nothing that they are never able to do anything else.

After a man's acquaintances really get to know him they often fail to recognize him.

When a man says there's no use talking you may as well prepare for a long-winded argument.

The number of things a man knows about a woman is only about 1 per cent of what he thinks he knows.

You may have observed that men who sit around and wait for dead men's shoes never cut much of a figure in history.

Beware of the man who smiles when he is angry; he's dangerous. And beware of the man who looks glum when he is glad; he's probably a humorist.

SAYS THE OWL.

A man's bank figure and a girl's tailor suit figure can make a very fine match.

Many a man who is supposed to be making money has to borrow car fare from his wife.

The way not to be taken for knowing too little is not to pretend to know too much.

A man can know darn little and yet make his wife believe he is a wonder at fixing the plumbing.

Somehow a girl's head looks awful red when you pull a hair of it off your coat on your way home.

There are lots of ways for a man to make love to a woman, and she invented every one of them.

A girl hardly ever gets mad at somebody she likes without being nice to somebody else she doesn't like.

When a girl's skirts get caught above her boot tops it is always some other girl that snickers the loudest.

It's awful nice the way a woman can convince you that you ought to do a thing she says you ought not to do.

The first five years of a boy's life he spends hoping he will know as much as his father; the rest of it that he won't know as little.

When a man comes home late and gives his wife $50 in the morning it is a sign that this won't be her day for denouncing poker playing.

ESCAPING STEAM BURNS ENGINEER

Andrew Holmes Was Injured While Adjusting Steam Valve at Canning Factory.

Andrew Holmes, engineer at the P. Hohenadel, Jr., canning factory, had a narrow escape this morning from a serious accident. While adjusting one of the steam valves on the engine the steam escaped in such a manner as to scald his arms. Mr. Holmes considered himself very fortunate that he escaped without more serious injury, as he would have been severely burned about the body had he been in a different position when the gauge burst.

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

CHAPTER XXI.

THE BOAT IN THE PASS.

It was evening. The Maldstone was beating to and fro off the mouth of the harbor of Bristol. The wind was still blowing hard on the shore and the French ships were securely bottled up. They could not beat out of the narrow channel. At least it would be a dangerous undertaking and the game would be scarcely worth the candle. Therefore the Maldstone, although her approach had been noticed long since, had been permitted to come as close as she dared unhindered.

From the foretop-mast cross-trees by the aid of a good glass Grafton had discovered unmistakable signs of preparation in the French fleet still wind-bound in the harbor. Many boats were passing between the ships and the shore, troops were being embarked, and provisions and supplies taken on board the huge line-of-battle ships and the frigates. It was quite evident that a movement of some sort was in contemplation; and it was more than probable that as soon as the wind served, taking advantage of the absence of the blockaders, the French would put to sea.

That was news of the highest importance. If they could learn the destination of the fleet there would be nothing left to be desired except an opportunity of meeting them; an opportunity Hawke would make if he were given the vestige of a chance.

"Hatfield," said Grafton, as he came down from the cross-trees for the last time, it being too dark to see farther, "I have changed my mind. I am going ashore to see if I can not find out something about the French fleet."

"And you want me to go with you?" "No, that can not be. You must look after the ship. I will take the dinghy and one man, old Jabez Slocum. Now, mark me. My plan is to land at a little cove I know of under the lee of the Chateau du Josselin, about which I told you. I shall effect an entrance to the castle immediately, and see if there is anything to be learned there. If not, I will take Jabez and we will sail boldly into the harbor and find out what we can."

"And you will see Mademoiselle de Rohan?" "Perhaps. I hope so, though that is not my main purpose. At least I would go even if I knew she were not there. Now, if I am not back by eight bells, midnight, you will brace up and make the best of your way to Worham and tell Sir Edward what we have learned."

"Yes, but you will hardly have time to get there and back by midnight, Capt. Grafton. Don't you think it would be better to make it, say, eight bells in the midnight, or four o'clock in the morning? I'd hate mightily to run away and leave you."

"Very well," answered Grafton, "that will give me more time, and perhaps it would be better not to leave without exhausting every possible opportunity of getting information as to the destination of the French fleet, for there is no doubt in my mind that they intend to move."

"Nor in mine." "Very well, then, we'll make it eight bells in the midnight." "And if you are not back then, I'm to make the best of my way to Worham, or Plymouth, or wherever I can find Sir Edward, deliver the dispatches, and tell what we have seen?"

"That's it. Now, I need not tell you to watch the ship carefully on this hard lee-shore, and when you start for Hawke, if I am not here, drive her for all she has in her."

"I will do both, Capt. Grafton." "Of course. And if the wind should change and the French should send out a liner or a couple of frigates after you, you are on no account to wait for me or anybody. The information we have gained is of far more importance than that a half dozen captured frigates. Remember that running, not fighting, is your role. Don't hesitate on my account. Don't be captured, and don't be wrecked."

"Very good," answered Hatfield. "I shall carry out your instructions to the letter. But I wish I could go with you."

"I wish so, too, but you can't. One of us must stay by the ship. Remember that the fate of England is resting on your shoulders," continued the older man gravely, "for 'tis perfectly well known if the French cut away from Bristol successfully, and are not beaten elsewhere, they have an army all ready for a descent upon Ireland, or perhaps England herself."

"I shall remember it," answered Hatfield solemnly.

"That's well. Now, heave to and have the dinghy dropped overboard. See that the mast is stepped and the sail is close reefed; put a compass, a beaker of water, a couple of muskets and a bag of bread in her; stow away forward a coil of signal halliards and a stout rope with a grapple bent on the end of it—about 30 fathoms of each, I think—and send old Jabez to me in my cabin."

"Ay, ay, sir," replied Hatfield, calling the hands to the braces as Grafton turned to the companionway and went below, whither he was followed shortly by the old sailor he had designated, with whom he spent a few moments in hasty preparation. Presently the ship was hove to and the dinghy dropped alongside. Grafton and Slocum came on deck. Grafton wore his uniform and both men were fully armed with sword, or cutlass, and pistols.

Grafton, "but we're all right yet. Give her a good full now. God! But it's dark! We've lost the lights, but I think we can feel our way. Hard over!" he shrieked, as another rock rose up in front of them.

As they cleared the rock, they suddenly whirled about, swept through a narrow opening, and found themselves in smooth water. The cliffs rose high above them on every side. The wind, though they could still hear it roaring faintly, seemed to die away suddenly. The change from the wild clamor of the pass to the silence and stillness in the bay was startling.

The dinghy drifted in for a few moments and then slowly came to a standstill, the water lapping along her keel. The men sat, quiet, but with beating hearts and panting breaths from their labor and excitement, until they had recovered themselves in a measure. Far above them towered the massive walls of the chateau.

"We are in," said Grafton at last, a note of triumph and relief thrilling through his voice.

He climbed aft and grasped the hand of the old man.

"By heaven, Jabez, I never saw such steering! We were gone a dozen times but for you!"

"'Twas my steerin', yer honor, 's much as 'twas your pilotin' got us in," remarked the old sailor, wiping the sweat from his forehead with his other hand. "'Twas a close shave all the way through. Wot next, sir?"

"Out with the oars, now, and let us row to the shore," he said, taking the tiller while Jabez shipped the oars. "Gently, man!" he added, as the boat surged rapidly forward under the old sailor's powerful strokes.

Presently her prow touched a little stretch of beach a few feet wide, which Philip remembered to have seen right at the foot of the place where he determined to make the attempt to descend the wall of the chateau.

"Now, Slocum," he said, "press me that coil of signal halliards."

When the mass of light but strong line was handed him he slipped the coil around his neck.

"If I mought make so bold, yer honor, wot are ye goin' to do?" asked the sailor.

"I am going to ascend the wall of the castle yonder." "Good Lord!" ejaculated the old man, "it can't be done. Why, 'tis a regular pressin'! I can shin up any 'real mast that ever was set, but that 'ere—"

"That'll do, Jabez. I've been here before and I know it's possible to scale the wall. It has been done before—by a lover."

"'Taint for the likes o' me to speak to you," said the old seaman; "but lovers allus was fools, they say, 'wch I ain't never been one, an' maybe Providence watches over 'em special like, but as for sailors—"

"I am a lover, too, Jabez. If it comes to that, 'tis not only for England that I go into that tower. Now, we've talked enough. I am going to climb to that window from which the light is coming. D'ye see it? The one with the balcony. Then I am going to drop the end of this piece of signal halliards down to you. I want you to bend on the end of that coil of rope in the bow to it. Be sure to make it fast to the grapple end. Then I'll haul it up, hook it to the balcony, and have a ladder to come down again."

"Werry good, sir." "Then you are to stay in the boat here and keep a sharp lookout for anything and everything. Have your muskets ready for use, too. You're a good shot, aren't you?" "I used to be, sir."

"I remembered it. Now, if I should happen to fall you are to pick up what's left of me, and take it back to the ship—if you can get back."

"An' if you don't come down, sir, 'wch God forbid—"

"Wait until about four bells in the midnight for me, as near as you can, guess the time—here, take my watch and then you can be sure—and then make your way as best you can to the ship. It will be easier to get out of this little bay, I think, than it was to get into it, especially if the wind shifts off-shore. Keep her reefed down and take it slowly; you must remember something of the pass from our coming in."

"If you ain't to go with me, cap't, I don't care wether I gits out alive or not. I'll jest jam her head for the openin' an' let her go. Damme, b'gein' yer pardner, sir, I wish you'd take me into that 'ere tower, too."

"I would rather have you down here, Jabez. Good-by; remember what I told you," Grafton said, extending his hand to his faithful if humble companion.

"I won't forget none of it, sir," answered the old man in a melancholy voice, shaking his captain by the hand.

CHAPTER XXII.

LIKE A BIRD IN THE AIR.

Grafton sprang lightly to the shore, and finding a suggestion of a path up the cliff, clambered slowly over the stones, until he stood on the narrow shelf of rock at the foot of the tower. He threw his head far back and looked up along its slanting surface. The clouds had broken now, and though the sky was still arid with their racing before the wind, he could see, around the black edge of the craggy tower, a star or two.

As he gazed upward that peculiar optical delusion which seizes people who look up at the sheer pitch of a lofty building came upon him. It seemed to him as though the castle were swaying toward him; as though in another moment it might fall and crush him. He lost all sense of the considerable inclination of the tower, or if there were any variation from the perpendicular; it seemed to him to slope back over his head, instead of away from him. It was an appalling sight. He stood at gaze a second or two and looked straight before him.

"This will never do," he murmured, "if I hesitate longer I shall be lost."

He leaned his forehead against the wall and closed his eyes, breathing a prayer at the same time, and having recovered his calmness thereby, he slowly and cautiously began the ascent. He put his foot on the first projecting stone and reached across the rough surface until his fingers clutched another jutting block. Then he swung himself into the air.

He looked neither up nor down, nor sideways, but stared straight at the wet stones in front of him as he motionously plodded up. He dared not look elsewhere, in fact. He found the dropped stern, where she swung to the full scope of the cable. She had come to rest exactly where she should be. It could not have been more deftly done if she had been picked up and set down in the designated spot.

"All hands furl sail! Lay aloft, topmen!" called out Grafton, a note of triumph in his voice.

In an instant the shrouds of his frigate were black with men swarming aloft, the light yard men, of course, in the lead. With nimble feet they ran up the shaking rigging, laid out on the broad yard-arms, and began to roll up the drooping canvas.

Old Hawke lifted and waved, his hand toward the frigate, and, as if it had been a signal, 1,000 throats on his own ship sent forth a ringing cheer of acknowledgment and greeting.

The men had been watching the movements of the Maldstone with intense interest and appreciation. They knew good seamanship when they saw it. Hawke was a thorough sailor and would tolerate no one who was not, in any ship or fleet he commanded. Grafton's heart swelled with pride and pleasure as he lifted his hat and waved it toward his generous superior in grateful acknowledgment. And, indeed, never had a delicate maneuver been more gracefully and smartly performed.

As soon as the men, who had finished their duties most expeditiously, had laid down from aloft, and had begun to square yards and clear up the gear, Grafton directed his gig to be called away, and temporarily relinquishing the charge of the ship to Hatfield, he repaired on board the flagship. He was met at the gangway of the latter vessel by Capt. John Campbell, her commander, and was at once escorted to the quarter-deck, whither Hawke, attended by his staff, had descended to meet him.

As Grafton saluted him the admiral recognized the young man who had sailed with him in other days, and his face lighted up with a kindly smile. After ceremoniously acknowledging the salute—for it was a day in which etiquette ruled intercourse, especially in the service—he extended his hand.

"Ah, Grafton," he said in a deep voice, which well accorded with his stout person, "I am glad to see you again; and let me tell you I never saw a ship brought to in better shape than that one. 'Twas a smart piece of seamanship and handiwork done. I hope our young gentlemen marked it, Campbell. Now, sir, we are brimful of curiosity to know your errand. Eh, captain? My young friends here have been fairly thrilling to hear your tidings. What news?"

My nurse, who came to nurse me, told me of Wine of Cardui and sent for a bottle. I am indeed glad that she did, for that first bottle started me on the road to recovery.

In a few weeks I was out of bed and in three months I was in better health and stronger than I had been in years. I taken dose now, occasionally, of Wine of Cardui and am kept in perfect health.

A REPUTATION SAVED

(Original.)

Not the martial music, dress parade, guard mounting, indeed, any or all the fascinating attendants of military life, can relieve the tedium that comes over a remote post when the inmates have once seen enough of one another. So thought pretty Mrs. Gessnor, the young wife of Lieutenant Earl Gessnor, and when it was announced that her husband's claim at West Point was coming to join them she was greatly pleased.

For a week after White's arrival he and his friend Gessnor were inseparable; then Gessnor was ordered away on a special duty to be gone several weeks. He told White that his wife, who was city bred, found it dull at the post and charged him to keep her in spirits.

White began by acceding to his friend's request, but soon discovered that Mrs. Gessnor was being carried off her feet in a mad passion for him. Reserve, even hauteur, on his part availed nothing to check her. To avoid trouble he secured an order temporarily taking him away from the post.

One morning he rode away on horseback. Mrs. Gessnor called for her horse and rode after him to bring him back. Whether her recklessness had suddenly become apparent to her and she feared his absence might attract attention to her folly or whether she could not endure his ill opinion, she did not know herself. She was shooting like a shuttle from one emotion to another.

There was at the post a Mrs. Major Walsh, who had long known and looked upon Lieutenant White with covetous eyes. It so happened that on the morning of White's departure Mrs. Walsh was being driven by an orderly in a buckboard on the road he had taken, and she suddenly came upon him pleading with Mrs. Gessnor, who sat in the saddle irresolute. That threw the winning cards into the hands of Mrs. Walsh. Conscious of her advantage she was in no haste. She waited until Gessnor had returned and White had returned, then opened a distressing fire on White.

White was no fool. Moreover, he had a cool head. The problem before him was to save Mrs. Gessnor from the consequences of her rashness, himself from the charge of taking advantage of a brother officer through his wife and to save the friendship existing between himself and Gessnor. This problem he considered for hours, and it seemed to him that every move he might make must be in the wrong direction. However, he formed a plan and set about putting it into operation. He convinced Mrs. Walsh that he was not in love with her. It is not difficult for us to believe what we want to believe, and the first part of the proposition was as true as the latter part was false. Mrs. Gessnor was much liked by the ladies of the post and was above suspicion, while Mrs. Walsh was neither liked nor trusted. So far so good.

But White could not long be devoted to the latter. He must find means at once to spike the gun with which she would kill Mrs. Gessnor. There was also an enemy in his rear in Mrs. Gessnor, who, despite her perilous position, could not bear to see the man she adored devoted to her enemy. He had two women to manage, both of whom were in love with him and either of whom was liable to commit harikari to injure the other.

One night the officers of the post got up a masquerade. It was in the warm season and there was to be dancing on the parade as well as in the officers' mess hall. The weather was superb and the moon at the full. No fancy costumes could be procured at an army post, far from civilization, so the ladies made up a number of dominoes of different colors which were to be used instead.

During the festivities Lieutenant Gessnor noticed a masculine figure in a yellow domino and a feminine figure in a red domino go out into the open. At the same time a figure in a white domino slipped up beside Gessnor and whispered, "Watch the red."

Gessnor followed the couple out on to the veranda and on to the parade. There they danced in a set that was forming as they arrived, after which they strolled about, getting farther and farther from the masqueraders till they reached a clump of trees back of the officers' quarters and sat down on a rustic bench.

Though the couple were in shadow Gessnor could see them plainly from a distance. Suddenly he saw the man take the woman in his arms and raise her mask for a kiss. Infuriated, Gessnor rushed forward, tore off the woman's mask and revealed—Mrs. Major Walsh.

Gessnor, declining to look into the identity of the man, turned on his heel and left them.

Such was the result of Lieutenant White's plot. He had learned the color of Mrs. Walsh's domino, then instructed Mrs. Gessnor to tell her husband that she would wear a red one herself, but to put on a white one instead. It was Mrs. Gessnor who had whispered the words in her husband's ear. They had compromised her enemy and rescued her from peril.

The next day White at his own request received an order from the commandant to report at Washington, where he was assigned to duty. Both Mrs. Gessnor and Mrs. Walsh bore an unblemished reputation so far as Lieutenant White was concerned, but the garrison was surprised at Mrs. Walsh's departure, soon after White's going, for San Francisco, where her husband afterward joined her, reporting for duty at a post near by.

Most Active Volcano.

The most active volcano in the world is Mt. Sangay, in Ecuador. It has been active without interruption since 1725.

LIGHT FROSTS IN LAKE REGION

Damage Is Confined to Wisconsin, Upper Michigan and Minnesota.

Washington, Sept. 13.—The weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions is as follows:

"Nearly normal temperature, with no rain or very light showers, prevailed over the greater part of the central valleys and interior of the southern states, while New England and the northern portion of the middle Atlantic states and lake region experienced temperature considerably below normal, light frosts occurring in the upper lake region, upper Mississippi and upper Missouri valleys on the 11th and 12th.

"Portions of the south Atlantic and gulf coast districts and Oklahoma, eastern Kansas and portions of Iowa and Minnesota received considerable rain, excessive amounts being reported from southern Georgia and eastern Florida. Abnormal temperature extremes occurred in California, the minimum at San Francisco on the 6th, 50 degrees, being as low as the lowest previous record for the first decade of September, and the maximum on the 7th and 8th, 100 degrees, being six degrees above the previous record for the corresponding period for more than thirty years.

Frost Damage Is Light.

"The damage resulting from light frosts on the 11th and 12th over the extreme northern portion of the corn belt was mainly confined to Minnesota, Wisconsin and upper Michigan, nearly the whole of the most productive part of the corn belt having experienced very favorable conditions for maturing the crop, which, with favorable weather, will be safe from injury by Oct. 1 in the most northerly districts. Much corn is already safe, cutting being general in the central and southern portions of the corn belt and is in progress as far north as South Dakota and southern Minnesota. Late corn has suffered from drought in portions of the Ohio valley and middle Atlantic states.

Spring Wheat Threshing.

"The weather has favored threshing in the spring wheat region and this work is now general in North Dakota and northern Minnesota, harvesting; which has been much delayed in the first-named state, having been finished except some late grain.

"While rust and sheathing continue over a large part of the cotton belt, reports of injury from these causes are less numerous than in the previous week in the central districts. The weather has been favorable for picking, except in portions of Georgia and Florida, where this work was hindered by heavy rains, and picking is now begun in the northern districts. In Texas cotton has improved slightly in a few northern counties, but on the whole very little new fruit is forming and boll weevils are puncturing nearly all new squares in the southwestern, central and eastern counties, as well as in a number of northern counties.

Good Progress for Tobacco.

"Late tobacco has been unfavorably affected by dry weather in portions of the middle Atlantic states and Ohio valley, but on the whole this crop has made good progress and is now largely secured. The weather conditions have been exceptionally favorable for housing and curing.

"In the lake region, over the northern portion of the middle Atlantic states and in New England a fine crop of apples is promised, but over the southern portion of the middle Atlantic states and the greater part of the central valleys apples are scarce and of indifferent quality.

"Except in portions of New England and the middle Atlantic states, where blight and rot in potatoes are extensive, a fine yield of this crop is generally indicated.

"Dry soil has retarded plowing and seeding in the Ohio valley, middle Atlantic states and over a large part of the Southern states, but good progress with this work has been made in the lake region and over the greater part of the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys."

CHILDREN'S SMALL DECEITS

Signs of Depravity in Little Ones That Bode Ill for Their Future.

Natural depravity of the youthful mind was fully shown in a North side confectionery store, when three little girls entered the shop in Indian file and made a beeline for the candy counter in the rear. Their faces wore an expression of injured innocence, says the Chicago Tribune.

"Well, what do you want now?" the old woman who was proprietor of the place inquired.

"Oh," said the eldest girl, barely seven years old, jerking her elbow expressively in the direction of one of her small companions, "she gave you a nickel instead of a cent." The old woman went behind the counter and took out a tin box containing a number of coppers. She peered into the box, she shook it, to make sure there was no nickel lurking among the other coins, and then held it under the noses of the little girls, exclaiming sharply: "There, now! Do you see any nickel there?"

Without replying the girls fled out of the shop, each face clouded by an expression of hopeless disappointment.

"You wouldn't believe it," said the old woman, bitterly. "I wouldn't believe it myself if I didn't stand here all day and see it with my own eyes. The deeds of children are almost enough to drive me crazy. They look you right in the face with angel eyes and lie to you as easily as if their tongues were oiled. Many a penny I lost because I could not believe that mere babes were trying to swindle me. When I catch them at it they run out just as those girls did without saying anything. That does not keep them from coming back here again, though."

"The boys around here are just as bad as the girls. Half a dozen boys were in here getting candy one day, and they had got their candy and hadn't paid for it, when a boy stuck his head in the door and shouted: 'Say, missus, your sign has tumbled down!' His eyes bulged out as if he was scared, and my heart gave such a jump that I could scarcely get out to the sidewalk. The sign was all right. The boys left the store by a rear door while I was looking for the boy. Afterwards they declared that they paid for the candy when they got it. It is dreadful to think what men and women these boys and girls will be when they grow up."

Effect of Caneeling.

Owing to constantly living in caravans a race of dwarfs in British New Guinea are losing the use of their legs, while their chests and arms are abnormally developed.

Blue Light for Inflammation.

The effect of blue light in reducing inflammation, diminishing pain, promoting absorption of morbid secretions and curing diseases of the skin, has been shown by several recent researches.

Men as Actresses.

Japan boasts of several brilliant actors, but, strangely enough, she affords no encouragement to actresses. Women's parts are played by men, and played excellently well, too. Japanese boys who are destined for a stage career are brought up entirely by members of the feminine sex. By the time that they are midway in their teens they have acquired all the usual female characteristics.

Refreshments in Church.

Family pews were introduced at the beginning of the seventeenth century. Some of these had a table and fireplace, also curtains and window blinds, so as to secure the utmost privacy. This led to abuses. In some of the closed pews card playing was not uncommon and the tedium of a long service was sometimes relieved by light refreshments.—The Reliquary.
